A Spirit of Genuine Courtesy Prevails in This Store

COURTESY begets courtesy. It is our desire to have this store known for the marked and genuine courtesy of its employes, and therefore we have impressed upon our salespeople this absolute necessity of being courteous at all times. Not to exercise the kind of courtesy that looks "put on," but the kind that grows out of a heart-felt desire to satisfy the wishes of the customer, and makes ahopping here a pleasure.

But unless our customers and friends resipresset this spirit of courtesy sor sadessess will all be in vain. May we ask you to help or maintain unbreken the chain of mutual courtery, which we are sure will prove beneficial to all concerned?

We are now on the threshold of Christmas. And we are going to do everything in our power to make this store.

"The Ideal Christmas Store."

Display Manager's Sale Week

Saturday is the last day of this sale, and Mr. Ramsden, our Display Manager, intends to make our windows fairly talk with price values. His contention last Saturday, that our show windows sell more merchandies than advertising, proved to be perfectly correct, and he has selected values for this last day that you can prove yourself by looking at our 21 windows, each window, with one price.
